Studies have shown that head hair grows approximately 1cm per month. This growth rate varies slightly (estimated at +/- 0.75cm per month). Standard screening tests cover approximately 90-day periods (3cm); however a more detailed month-by-month analysis can be performed by testing individual 1cm sections enabling a historic record to be established as far back as the hair sample will allow. Please note that body hair samples cannot be segmented.

Alcohol Abuse Testing - (Please mark with an X as applicable)

It is now possible to assess people who have been drinking heavily or using alcohol regularly (defined as at least 60 grams of alcohol per day) on a routine basis for a minimum of 2-4 weeks (PEth) and/or up to six months (ETG/FAEE Test). The combination of blood and hair testing provides a comprehensive report showing recent and longer term consumption.
